Who This Guide Is For

This guide is for job seekers who want to land a real remote job—without prior experience, a degree, or a fancy resume. If you're tired of low-wage in-person work, want to break into tech, admin, or creative roles, or just need a job you can do from anywhere, this is for you.

It's especially useful if you've been applying and hearing nothing back, or if you're overwhelmed by generic advice and want the specific, proven tactics that actually get interviews and offers.

▶ MODULE 03

Why This Job Is Worth Looking At

Remote jobs with no experience required are one of the few real ways to break out of low-wage, in-person work—without a degree or years of experience. Several creators report landing $60K+ roles in under a month, and tech sales in particular is highlighted as a path where beginners can ramp to $80K+ in their first year.

Unlike gig work or 'side hustles', these are real jobs with benefits, paid training, and career growth. Some roles (like AI trainer or remote healthcare admin) are so new that employers can't find enough applicants, making them less competitive than you'd think.

▶ MODULE 04

What The Job Actually Does

Remote entry-level jobs span a range of industries. Here are some of the most common roles:

- Tech Sales (BDR/SDR): Reaching out to leads, booking calls, qualifying prospects for software companies.
- AI Trainer: Reviewing, rating, or writing sample answers to help train AI models (often via platforms like Welo Data, Remotasks, or Scale AI).
- Customer Support Rep: Handling customer questions via chat, email, or phone for SaaS, e-commerce, or tech companies.
- Remote Healthcare Admin: Managing patient records, scheduling, or insurance claims for clinics and hospitals.
- Content Moderator: Reviewing user-generated content for safety and quality.

Most of these jobs involve using a laptop, basic software tools (email, chat, CRM), and following clear processes. You don't need to code or have advanced tech skills for most entry-level roles.

▶ MODULE 05

Pay Potential — The Real Numbers

$60,000–$80,000

Typical starting pay for tech sales, AI trainer, and customer support roles (source: creator transcript, job boards)

$70,000+

Reported first-year pay for entry-level tech sales (BDR/SDR) roles (source: creator transcript)

$33/hr

AI Trainer pay (Welo Data, Remotasks, per X posts and job listings)

$65,000

Remote healthcare admin/medical billing (after 12 months, source: job boards)

▶ MODULE 06

Requirements

Requirement	Details
Education	No degree required for most roles. High school diploma or equivalent is enough.
Experience	No prior experience needed. Some roles may prefer customer service or sales background, but not required.
Equipment	Laptop or desktop computer, reliable internet connection, headset for calls (often provided by employer).
Location	Many roles are open globally, but some require US/Canada/EU residency for payroll or legal reasons.

▶ MODULE 07

Skills Needed

Skill	Why It Matters
Basic computer literacy	Comfort using email, chat, and web-based tools.
Written & verbal communication	Most roles involve interacting with customers or team members remotely.
Organization	Ability to manage tasks, follow scripts, and keep records.
Coachability	Willingness to learn new tools and processes quickly.
Problem-solving	Especially for support and AI training roles.

► MODULE 08

Certifications or Licenses

Role	Cert/License Needed	How to Get It
Tech Sales (BDR/SDR)	None required	Optional: LinkedIn Learning 'Tech Sales' certificate
AI Trainer	None required	No formal certs; some platforms require a short skills test.
Customer Support	None required	Optional: Google IT Support Professional Certificate (free/low-cost)
Healthcare Admin	Optional: Medical Billing & Coding Certificate	Many jobs will train you on the job; cert can help but not required for entry-level remote roles.

Beginner Roadmap

- 1 Pick 2-3 job titles from the Master Catalog below that match your interests and skills.
- 2 Search for those job titles (and their alternate names) on remote job boards like WeWorkRemotely, Remote.co, and Indeed.
- 3 Prepare a simple, one-page resume using keywords from real job listings (see Exact Resume Keywords below).
- 4 Apply to at least 10 jobs per day, using the copy/paste script provided.
- 5 If you get stuck, ask for feedback in free online communities (e.g., r/RemoteWork, LinkedIn groups, or the JobHacki Skool community).
- 6 Take any required skills tests or assessments promptly.
- 7 Track your applications in a spreadsheet so you can follow up.

7-Day Action Plan

- 1 Day 1: Choose 2-3 target roles and gather 10 real job listings for each.
- 2 Day 2: Build your resume using keywords from those listings.
- 3 Day 3: Register on 3-5 remote job boards (WeWorkRemotely, Remote.co, FlexJobs, Indeed).
- 4 Day 4: Apply to 10 jobs using the script below.
- 5 Day 5: Take any skills assessments sent by employers.

- 6 Day 6: Join a remote work community and ask for feedback on your resume/application.
- 7 Day 7: Follow up on all applications from Day 4.

▶ MODULE 11

30-Day Action Plan

- 1 Weeks 1-2: Apply to 10-20 jobs per day. Track all applications in a spreadsheet.
- 2 Week 2: If no interviews, tweak your resume using more keywords from job ads.
- 3 Week 3: Complete any free online training relevant to your target role (e.g., LinkedIn Learning, Google certificates).
- 4 Week 3: Practice interview answers using the talking points below.
- 5 Week 4: Attend at least one virtual job fair or networking event (search on Eventbrite or LinkedIn).
- 6 End of Month: Review which roles are getting interviews and double down on those titles.

▶ MODULE 12

Insider Secrets & Shortcuts

- 1 Apply to 50–100 jobs in your first 30 days, not just 5–10. One creator landed a remote tech sales job in 28 days by sheer volume (source: creator transcript).
- 2 For tech sales/BDR roles, use the exact title variations: 'Business Development Representative', 'Sales Development Representative', 'Inside Sales Rep', 'Account Development Rep', 'Lead Generation Specialist', 'Outbound Sales Rep'.

- 3 AI Trainer jobs are often posted on Welo Data, Remotasks, and Scale AI—these platforms rarely require a resume or experience, just a skills test (source: X posts, creator videos).
- 4 If you get stuck, post your cold outreach message or resume in a free online group and ask for specific feedback—this shortcut was highlighted as a key differentiator between those who succeed and those who quit (source: GoHighLevel creator transcript).
- 5 For customer support roles, search for 'Customer Experience Associate', 'Support Specialist', 'Client Success Rep', 'Chat Support Agent', and 'Customer Care Coordinator'—these are often the same job with different names.
- 6 Don't list every skill you have—mirror the exact phrases from the job ad. If the ad says 'proficient in Zendesk', put 'proficient in Zendesk' on your resume, even if you only used it briefly (source: creator transcript).

▶ MODULE 13

Exact Resume Keywords

Role	Must-Have Keywords
Tech Sales (BDR/SDR)	lead generation, outbound calls, CRM, pipeline management, Zoom, prospecting
AI Trainer	data labeling, content review, annotation, AI model training, quality assurance
Customer Support	ticketing system, customer inquiries, chat support, conflict resolution, Zendesk
Healthcare Admin	medical records, scheduling, insurance verification, HIPAA compliance, data entry

▶ MODULE 14

Copy/Paste Application Script

▶ MODULE 15

Interview Talking Points

- 1 Emphasize your ability to learn quickly and adapt to new tools (reference any online courses or self-taught skills).
- 2 Share a story about how you handled a challenge or learned something new fast (even if it's from school or a non-work setting).
- 3 Mention your interest in remote work and ability to stay organized and motivated without supervision.
- 4 If applying for tech sales, say you understand the basics of lead generation and are comfortable with outreach (reference any experience, even cold emailing for a school project).
- 5 If applying for AI trainer, mention attention to detail and willingness to follow precise instructions.

▶ MODULE 16

Red Flags / Scams To Avoid

Warning

Never pay for a job or training upfront—legit remote jobs pay you, not the other way around. Avoid roles that ask for your bank info before an offer letter, or that only communicate via Telegram/WhatsApp. If a job sounds too good to be true ($100/hr for data entry, no interview), it probably is. Always check the company's website and LinkedIn before accepting any offer.

Source Notes

"I worked with recruiters, sales managers, I was networking a ton and learning what I needed to... once I committed to this path it really took a short amount of time, like 28 days, to get my first good paying solid remote Tech sales role."

WHAT EACH TOOL ACTUALLY DOES

OmniCut

OmniCut watches your entire video the way an elite editor would — every frame, the full transcript, your offer and what you're actually selling — then runs it through the viral frameworks behind our own content. What you get back is a timestamped editing score: your video chopped into 10-second sequences, each with exact vocal cues, audio cues, effect calls and animation directions. Copy a sequence, paste it into Gemini Omni, and generate that cut — then the next, then the next, until the whole edit is done. Runs as a custom GPT inside ChatGPT (you'll need a ChatGPT account), purpose-built for Gemini Omni video editing the day it drops.

JobHacki Resume Builder

Drop in your LinkedIn (or paste your experience) and it rebuilds everything into the exact one-page format we use: tight summary line, education with the details recruiters scan for, metric-driven experience bullets, and the 10-category skills stack that beats ATS keyword filters. Out comes a polished PDF plus a fully editable doc — change any line later without starting over. Single-industry and multi-industry versions included.

JobHacki Readiness Simulator

Paste a real job posting link. The simulator breaks down what that role actually demands — skills, tools, terminology, scenarios — and tests you on it: multiple choice, written answers, even voice roleplay for interviews and sales calls. You get a Readiness Score out of 100 across skill match, tool match, communication and interview readiness, plus the exact study plan to close your gaps — linked straight to the guides, certs and resources that fix them.

Atlas Directory

The full living library: 100+ grounded, step-by-step playbooks across AI businesses, careers, trades, healthcare paths and side income — every one built from people who actually did it, never theory. Our AI researchers monitor hundreds of creators and sources around the clock, so tools, pay data and methods stay current. Search it, filter it, read online or download any guide as a PDF.
